

Daniel Carter, Website Officer

Experience

I have experience with website development (having been involved with managing several websites), as well as with other aspects of programming and working with Linux. If elected, I would endeavour to provide a high-quality online presence for the JCR, both via our own website and the social media groups.

Manifesto

- In accordance with the desire for transparency which many of this year's elected officials have expressed, provide documents such as meeting minutes and accounts via the JCR website, subject to the approval of the JCR committee and college officials (some of these are already listed on the website, but many are hard to find and they are often out of date)
- Provide better information for new and potential students (initially adding the current resources which are available elsewhere to the website for easy reference, and potentially adding others in discussion with the relevant JCR officers)
- Undertake a general "clean-up" of the website, ensuring that all information is current and links are functional
- Work with societies and other groups in college to ensure they are all listed online, thus allowing people to easily discover what is going on in college
- Work with the rest of the JCR committee to provide other online materials and services as required
